IN THE POTOMAC VALLEY.

SENATOR SAWYER HUNTING FOR GOLD AROUND WASHINGTON.

He is Investigating a Recently Discovered Vein—Senator Plumb's Resolution Causes Considerable Talk in the House—Liquor at the Capital—Other Notes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Senator Sawyer, of Wisconsin, who has made a fortune in the lumber business of the northwest, is now seeking gold within sight of the dome of the capitol. Something more than a century ago gold was discovered in the valley of the Potomac, and nuggets are large as grains of wheat have been found on the hills about Washington. Recently it has been discovered that there is a vein of gold bearing quartz below the surface and extending transversely to the bed of the river, where it outcrops. The vein is only a few inches in width and was discovered by accident. There is not much scientific warrant for the belief that gold can be found in paying quantities in this vicinity, and the best informed men on the geographical survey do not have much faith in the alleged discovery.

But it may be well to remember in this connection that science has been able to render very little aid of a practical sort in the location of valuable ores and fluids. When an oil prospector seeks a spot on which to drill a new well he takes any advice rather than that of a geologist. The reason for this is that the geologists have generally failed in their guesses, whereas the practical driller of oil wells, guided by experience and the work of others near, frequently succeeds in striking oil.

Senator Sawyer has faith in the existence of gold in profitable quantities near Washington. He has had the matter investigated by a friend of scientific attainments and of practical sense, in whom he has great confidence. Work has been in progress for five or six weeks and a small stamp mill has been erected for reducing the quartz as it comes from the shaft. The results have not been made public, but it is generally understood that they are of a satisfactory nature.

The average yield from a ton of ore has been $33 worth of gold. This is a very handsome return, and if the vein holds out Senator Sawyer has got a gold mine of rare value within an hour's ride from his Washington residence.

A Startling Discovery.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The resolution introduced by Mr. Plumb, of Illinois, asking for an investigation of the facts as to the passage, engrossment and enrollment of the funding act, under which over $700,000,000, in four-per-cent. bonds were issued, has been received by the house judiciary committee, and a hearing upon it will probably be had next week. The resolution causes considerable talk in the house. Curious disclosures are expected, which may involve the validity of all four-per-cent. bonds outstanding. When Mr. Plumb found that the journals of the house and senate showed the bill as passed provided that the government might redeem these bonds at pleasure "for thirty years," instead of "after thirty years," as the published law puts it, he examined the engrossed bill and found that the word "for" had been erased all but the "f," which was left in the same ink as the rest of the bill, and that the letters "a" and "ter" were inserted in another ink. It indicated a clear case of tampering, by which it is estimated the government loses a large sum. Mr. Plumb called the attention of Senator Edmunds to the matter, and, after looking into it carefully, he said that it seemed to him that the bonds issued under the act were invalid, or else were redeemable by the government at will.

Prohibitionists Storming the Capital.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The Prohibitionists of the country are becoming very solicitous about the welfare of the District of Columbia. Petitions to the senate committee on district affairs are pouring in from all parts of the United States. Some remote little town in Wisconsin sent in a petition the other day praying congress to prohibit the liquor traffic in and about Washington. The Prohibitionists are making a concentrated and systematic movement on the National capital. Agents were sent out some time ago to secure signatures and petitions, and the petitions are now coming in with great frequency.

Nearly every morning that the senate is in session some of the senators find one or more of these petitions on their desks. Many thousand names have been obtained and the number of signatures is increasing daily. The Republican senators are largely in favor of prohibiting the traffic in the District of Columbia, but it is not likely that a bill will be passed this session to effect that result.

Congressional News.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—In the senate today a number of petitions were presented in favor of internal arbitration, retaliation for exclusion of American products from European markets, etc.

Mr. Allison reported favorably the bill to appropriate for experimental agricultural stations, and endeavored to secure immediate consideration, but failed.

The calendar was then taken up, and bills of minor importance were passed in their regular order.

The senate at 2 o'clock, by a vote of 55 to 7, passed the bill granting a pension of $3,000 to the widow of Gen. J. A. Logan, and on motion of Mr. Vest, the bill granting a similar pension to the widow of Gen. Frank P. Blair, was passed.

After the passage of the Logan and Blair pension bills Mr. Blair took the floor for a speech on the educational bill.

At 2:40 the senate went into secret session. Senator Edmunds in executive session favorably reported District Attorney Hoge and Judge Montgomery, of the District of Columbia, and they were confirmed.

At 2:50 the doors were reopened and the senate resumed the consideration of the educational bill.

The house committee on foreign affairs today agreed to report favorably the joint resolution of Mr. Belmont accepting the invitation to this country to participate in the French exposition, beginning at Paris on May 5 next, in celebration of the fall of the Bastille. It was shown that all of the monarchical governments have so far refused to participate in the exposition, and that it therefore appealed strongly for co-operation of the American republic. The bill appropriates $300,000, and as amended provides for the appointment of one commissioner general, at a salary of $5,000, a deputy at $2,500, nine sub-commissioners at $1,300 each, and an honorary commissioner from each of the states, to serve without pay, all to be appointed by the president, instead of by the governors of the states and the president, as at first proposed.

OFF THE COAST OF MAINE.

Rigging and Deck of a Schooner Heavily Coated With Ice.

PORTLAND, Me., Jan. 27.—Three feet of ice covered the decks of the schooner Eliza U. Smith as she was towed into port. Every stick, every rope was the core of an icicle, and the ship looked like an iceberg. It seems that soon after she started from the banks for home a thick mist, almost a rain, set in.

The sea was very high, and the schooner frequently shipped water, and every moment added to the ice on every part of the craft. All attempts to cut it away proved worse than useless, for it tired out the men without doing any real good. The jib was carried away, and then it was found to be almost out of the question to manage the sails. The shrouds became one mass of ice.

The men suffered intensely. Capt. Hillier called one of the crew, a hardy fellow named Harry Stock, to the wheel. He hadn't been there more than ten minutes, as the captain thinks, when he was discovered to be almost dead. The intense cold had almost stopped the flow of blood, and, as it was, his face and hands were badly frozen.

When the schooner was 150 miles from Portland, the sails were frozen so completely that it was out of the question for the tired crew to handle them. A great sea came over to windward, knocking Capt. Hillier down and then sweeping him with it. When going over the rail he caught and held on.

THE WELLINGTON MINE DISASTER.

A Survivor's Story—The Number of Dead Now Estimated at Thirty-Five.

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 27.—James Wetmore, one of the survivors of the Wellington mine disaster, says that the explosions extinguished all the lights in the mine. Accompanied by eleven of his comrades, Wetmore groped about the darkness and stifling after-damp. After wandering about the chambers for a half hour or more, all lay down to die. At last all succumbed but Wetmore, whose lusty shouts attracted the attention of the rescuing party.

It is now estimated that thirty-five miners lost their lives. Michael Dwyon was blown 700 feet from the shaft. His eyes are gone, and one arm was torn from its socket. Robert Camden was leading a gang of comrades out of the pit after the two explosions when all were struck by a wave of after-damp and killed. Two sturdy young men, supposed to be brothers, were found in the tight embrace of death. The men who have volunteered to recover the dead bodies experience great trouble in prosecuting their work. The mine is filled with after-damp, and more explosions are feared.

Three searchers were overcome by the gas yesterday afternoon and were resuscitated with much difficulty. Indians and Chinese were engaged in the perilous work until yesterday noon, when a light explosion in the pit sent them all screaming to the shaft. Some of the bodies cannot be reached, as they lie beneath tons of coal and timbers.

A Point in the Haddock Murder Case.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Iowa, Jan. 27.—A man was found yesterday in one of the lumber yards with his throat cut from ear to ear. He was taken to the hospital and was found to be Wencil Cerney, a Bohemian carpenter, of Scotland, D. T. He said he had been at Sioux City, where he had been accused of complicity in the Haddock murder and was threatened with being lynched. This so preyed on his mind as to lead him to attempt suicide. Before his wounds were dressed Cerney wished to speak of the Haddock tragedy, but when told he would live he refused to talk about it. When, to quiet him, he was assured that Mr. Haddock's murderer had been caught he said: "No, they have not got him yet." The physicians say Cerney is sane, and it is thought he knows much of the Sioux City crime.

Brewers Stand by the Union.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 27.—Brewers' Union, No. 9, whose membership includes all the brewers employed in this city, held a largely attended meeting last night, and decided unanimously to stand by the union. As the employing brewers gave the notice Tuesday that they must either leave their employ or desert the union, the result will undoubtedly be a general lockout to-day. Both sides are very decided in their determination to adhere to their convictions.

Two Persons Starved to Death.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Two persons died of starvation in the Bellevue hospital last night. Peter Flynn, aged sixty-six, who deliberately starved himself to death, and Frances Stoffenback, aged seventy, who was without food and was too proud to ask for alms. They were too far gone to recover before their condition was discovered.

Terribly Slashed.

CORINTH, Ky., Jan. 27.—A terrible cutting affray occurred in this place between Dr. W. B. Robinson and Brack Davis, a notorious rough, in which Robinson received ten cuts about the head and face by a knife in the hands of Davis. No arrest up to this writing.

MR. HOPKINS TESTIFIES

HOW HE IN HIS INNOCENCE OF HEART RELIED ON HARPER.

Mr. Hopkins Sometimes Stumbled Upon Things Connected With the Great Wheat Deal, But Never Suspected Any Wrong. Harper Said They Were Well Fixed.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 27.—Hopkins this morning took a seat in the easy chair placed for his convenience on the witness stand.

He stated that he had no notice of the arrangement to send the $1,000,000 to the Chemical bank. Did not see any movement or acts of the clerks in handling the bills; did not handle the bills with Harper; left the bank at 5:30 or 6; went to the Gibson house and took a glass of beer; then went south on Walnut to Fourth and went on that street. In front of the Adams express office he met Yowell and said to him:

"Hello, Jack, what are you doing with a bank package under your arm at this time of night?"

Yowell said he wanted to send it to New York for Harper. The Adams was closed.

Hopkins suggested the Erie, and they went over there. Clerk said a value had to be placed on it. Hopkins said: "Jack, what shall we make it?" He hesitated. Hopkins said: "Just make it $500." It was the practice of the bank to send packages to New York bank by express. Did not hand Miss Holmes draft of letter from Harper relating to the $1,000,000. Did not stop payment of drafts issued by him that day. Payment was stopped on the morning of the following day.

Hinch came to him one morning—think it was the 10th of June—and said the currency was running low. Hopkins ascertained that the public were very apprehensive—rumors were afloat about the Chicago wheat speculations—and told Harper about it. Harper said, "Oh, we're well fixed." Never dictated letters of advice to Irwin, Green & Company. Harper attended to that.

On the 10th of June, when he reported to Harper at the bank the apprehensive feeling regarding the bank's affairs, Mr. Zimmerman was sitting there.

Hopkins never gave any attention to the form or preparation of letters of advice to Kershaw & Company. Had no knowledge of any drafts upon credits until June 15, when the $70,000 draft was drawn, and never presented any checks of Hoyt's to Miss Holmes.

Hopkins first learned on June 16 that the four drafts and letters of credit given to Wilshire on June 14 had not been entered on the books. Harper informed him.

Mr. Swift came into the bank on the morning of the 17th and asked to see the account of Wilshire, Eckert & Company. It showed an overdraft of $250,000. Hopkins went to Miss Holmes' books to find the entry. Harper looked up and said:

"What are you looking for, Bent?"

"I want to find the entry of the drafts," said Hopkins.

"They have not been entered," said Harper.

"Why have they not been entered," angrily demanded Swift.

Harper pulled Miss Holmes' skirt and told her to keep her mouth shut. Harper said they would have been entered had the Chicago brokers kept their guarantee.

Swift and Harper then walked toward Swift's room, talking in very angry tones.

All communications from Irwin, Greene & Company were to Hoyt and from Hoyt through Hopkins to Harper.

Never furnished any memoranda of the drafts of June 14 to Miss Holmes.

Hoyt was told on one occasion to purchase 100,000 bushels of wheat for Miss Holmes. But the purchase went into Account B.

On Monday morning, June 21, Hopkins came to the bank. Bank Examiner Powell was there. He opened up the receiver's book, and turning to three certificates of deposit said: "Mr. Hopkins, who drew these?" Hopkins replied that he didn't know.

Harper never had any knowledge that Harper's credits on the books were fictitious. "Didn't believe the man capable of doing such a thing."

On the afternoon of June 20, at the meeting in the directors' room, C. N. Jordan said he would help the bank out with $500,000. Hopkins was sent out to get a statement. Hinch furnished a list of checks carried as cash items amounting to $1,275,000.

When Hopkins returned to the directors' room and showed the statement to Jordan, that gentleman said "good-by," and took the first train for New York.

Hopkins did not believe the bank was embarrassed upon that day. He advised his daughters to purchase stock on May 23.

At noon court adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow to allow Mr. Bateman to attend the funeral of Col. Moulton. He is one of the pallbearers.

MAXWELL'S FATHER.

He is Coming to America for the Third Time in the Interests of His Son.

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 27.—"Do everything; sell Saturday," were the words of a cablegram received yesterday by Maxwell's attorneys from his father in England. The old gentleman has twice made the long trip from England to St. Louis in his erring son's interest, and is expected here again in a couple of weeks. Maxwell was much pleased at the news that his father was coming. He feels the need now of all the aid he can get. He spent a large part of the day in the jail rounds, although very few visitors were admitted to see and talk with him.

He is now engaged most of his time writing statements of his case, in which he hopes to prove that he has not been fairly tried. He grasps at everything that offers help for his cause. Tuesday afternoon the police photographer took his picture in different attitudes, and in his new Prince Albert coat and Derby hat. A telegram from Jefferson City says that Governor Morehouse has already received letters from a great many people urging him not to commute Maxwell's sentence, and that the governor is disposed that the law take its course.

Convicts' Scheme Frustrated.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., Jan. 27.—A startling plot for the wholesale liberation of prisoners confined in the state penitentiary was discovered yesterday by Warden Patton. Scott Thompson, a burglar, was to be released. When he was searched, keys to the cells house and sealed instructions to three prisoners were found under the fellow's arm-pits. Thompson was held and with Clark, a cell mate, confessed that the escape was planned for to-day at the time when the convicts are let into the hall for shaving. Keys to the cells and outside doors were found tied up in Clark's shirt. It was part of the plot to overpower and kill the guards. Clark confessed that he was over a year making the keys, the impression of which he took in wax.

Lard Oil Fire.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 27.—Fire this morning destroyed the lard oil manufactory and warehouses of James Dalzell, Son & Company, No. 70 Water street. Loss, $30,000; insurance on stocks, $60,000. The adjoining building owned by the same firm and occupied by George Wamhoff & Company, window glass dealers, and the Anchor Paste company, was damaged. Wamhoff's loss, $2,000; insurance, $1,500; Anchor Paste company's loss, $3,000; insurance, $2,500. Dalzell's insurance on both buildings is $12,000. Spontaneous combustion is supposed to have caused the fire. An employee, name unknown, jumped from a second story window and was somewhat injured.

Preferred Death to Arrest.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., Jan. 27.—At New Canaan, Louis Drucker, a constable, attempted to serve a warrant upon Jacob Keeler for violation of the excise law. Keeler barricaded the door and threatened violence if Drucker entered. The constable procured assistance and was approaching the place when Keeler fired from a window, killing Drucker instantly. Keeler then shot himself before the posse could break in and capture him. He will die. Drucker was very popular, and there is much excitement.

A Rampant Cook.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 27.—The wife of Secretary Squires, of the Standard Oil company, a society lady, was dragged by her hair around the kitchen of her home on Prospect street, on last Sunday morning, by Jennie Hills, her cook. She has suffered from nervous prostration ever since. A party of New York visitors were at breakfast at the time, and Mrs. Squires had rebuked the woman for some show of temper. The Hills woman proved herself a virago of great ability. She was sent to the work-house yesterday for three months.

A Tribute to Colonel Moulton.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—A special meeting of the Ohio society was held at its rooms yesterday evening for the purpose of taking appropriate action on the death of the late Col. C. W. Moulton, one of the vice presidents of the society. Addresses were delivered by Gen. Wager Swayne, Col. W. I. Strong, C. C. Hayne and Col. W. P. Fogg, and resolutions eulogizing the deceased were passed. The deceased was a very enthusiastic and popular member of the society.

Cotton Experiment in Zanzibar.

GALVESTON, Tex., Jan. 27.—Ten tons of superior Texas cotton seed were shipped from here yesterday, consigned to the German East African Colonization society, Zanzibar, Africa. An experienced planter accompanied the seed for the purpose of instructing the natives of Zanzibar in the cultivation of the cotton plant. This event marks the introduction of cotton on the east coast of Africa.

Former Oil King Dies a Tramp.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 27.—A tramp, identified as George Peppers, who is said to have made a fortune in the early days of the Pennsylvania oil discoveries, and who then squandered upwards of $500,000 in Wall street speculations, died yesterday at Sarcosis, Mo., from the effects of exposure. Since 1877 he has tramped all over the southwest, visiting Mexico, Texas, Nevada and the slope.

Frisco Threatened With Coal Famine.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 27.—The scarcity of coal in this city amounts to almost a fuel famine. Three hundred coal carts have been in line two days waiting for the arrival of the steamer bringing a cargo of coal from Wellington. It is feared that the expedition in the mine at that point will make coal still scarcer for some time to come.

"Blinky" Denies the Story.

CLEVELAND, O., Jan. 27.—"Blinky" Morgan resents the interference of his Pittsburgh friend, and telegraphs from the Ohio penitentiary that the confession he is said to have made is not in existence, and never will exist, and that the story emanated from detectives to prejudice the circuit court before which his case is to pass.

But Little Coal Being Mined.

READING, Pa., Jan. 27.—Dispatches received to-day from various mining localities show that but little coal is being mined. At the William Penn colliery, Shenandoah, no coal is being shipped. The only coal mined is that necessary to supply the wants of the people around the mines.

FRIDAY EVEN'G, JAN. 27, 1888.

The temperance people of Fleming County pay W. A. Sudduth, their attorney, $300 salary a year to prosecute all violators of the liquor law. At a public meeting a few days ago in Flemingsburg a collection, amounting to $30, was raised to help pay this salary.

This BULLETIN takes pleasure in publicly acknowledging a favor at the hands of Congressman George M. Thomas. Through his kindness we are receiving regularly a copy of the Congressional Record. This is an unexpected favor, which is appreciated, and for which Mr. Thomas will please accept our thanks.

The announcement is made that Thobe will oppose Speaker Carlisle in the race for Congress in the Covington district next fall. If he does, it will be a bonanza for the "floaters" in that "neck of the woods." The high-tariffites will flood the district with money, and go their full length to get the brightest statesmen in the country out of their way.

In the death of General John Finnell, the Republican party in this State loses one of its prominent members. His friends throughout the Commonwealth, and they are many—will regret to learn the sad news of his demise. General Finnell's wife was Miss Elizabeth Tureman, of Carlisle. She died a few years ago. He leaves six children, all of whom are married except the two youngest, a son and a daughter.

The Carlisle-Thobe contest is ended, but the following from the New York Sun, uttered pending the action of the House in the case, undoubtedly voiced a universal sentiment:

We do not believe there is an honest man in the United States, however he may differ from the Speaker in matters of political opinion, who doubts that Mr. Carlisle's course in this matter has been governed and will continue to be governed by the most scrupulous considerations of right and the finest sense of personal honor.

ELDER JOSEPH FRANK, formerly of this city, is one of the most ardent and earnest temperance workers in Fleming County. He is author of the stringent liquor law now in force in that county, and is one of the prime leaders in the cause. At a public meeting in Flemingsburg a few days ago, he said:

We promised that this law should be enforced, and we intend to do it. Prohibition is not dead yet. They are sending whisky to 'bull pups' and 'Tom cats,' but by our manhood we will get them yet. By the manhood of Fleming County, we will see this law enforced. We have taught both parties that some things cannot be done in conventions. We have taken both parties by the head and nearly bumped their brains out. We have given warning that we are on the road, and the liquor men must get out of the way, or be run over. Let them back again the $100 fine a time or two more, and that will cure them of sucking eggs.—Laughter.

Stock and Crops.

Milton Young's fine stallion, Pizarro, valued at over $7,500, died recently at Lexington.

F. W. Kearns, of Harrison County, raised 12,000 pounds of tobacco on eight acres last season and has sold it for $2,100—18 cents a pound.

Happy Medium, one of the most celebrated trotting stallions in the world, owned by W. T. Withers, of Lexington, died this week of spinal meningitis. He was the sire of Maxey Cobb (record 2:13). General Withers sold $40,000 of Happy Medium's get in the past year or so.

The number of pounds of tobacco raised in Robertson in 1886 was 1,050,300, average price 4 cents, amounting to about $42,372. The number of pounds raised last year was about 612,300, and the average price will be about 15 cents, which will amount to $91,845, more than twice as much as in 1886.

Some of the farmers of Union County have been experimenting in feeding wheat to their hogs. The wheat is first ground and wet up. One, after feeding 500 bushels, claimed that every bushel of wheat made $1.63 worth of pork. Others claim that at 5 cents per pound for their pork, wheat fed in this way brought them $1.25 per bushel.

The Poor Little Ones.

We often see children with red eruptions on face and hands, rough, scaly skin, and often sores of the head. These things indicate a depraved condition of the blood. In the growing period, children have need of pure blood by which to build up strong and healthy bodies. If Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is given, the blood is purged of its bad elements, and the child's development will be healthy, and as it should be. Scrofulous affections, rickets, fever-sores, hip-joint disease or other grave maladies and suffering are sure to result from neglect and lack of proper attention to such cases.

EATERS OF WHALE BLUBBER.

Two Queer Little Men—Quaint Marriage and Religious Customs.

"I have one wife, my brother has two and my father has four," said a quaint looking little man with almond eyes and an X in India ink on each cheek to a reporter. The speaker was Oom Kooch, and with him was Tommy or Nanghook, both Esquimaux, who arrived here on the whaler Reindeer. Their home is among the Siberian steppes, within the Arctic circle in 66 1-2 degs. north latitude and 170 degs. west longitude. Here, born and bred in a snow house, in a land where the sun never sets in summer, they had remained, as had their ancestors for thousands of years, and never dreamed of another country until, when their little skin boat was blown far out to sea, they were taken aboard the Reindeer.

"I expect my wife will be gone when I get back," said the funny little man who first spoke, and who talked English remarkably well. "Some other man will probably have her, but then I'll get me another one. Up there if man goes fishing, come back and find wives gone, he don't worry. He goes and gets some more."

Tommy listened to this speech rather demurely. "Tommy is homesick," said Oom Kooch. "He wants to get back again. He has two pretty wives and three ugly ones. I like California very well. It's nice and warm down here, and when I go back next year I'm going to bring my three sisters and come down here to live."

"These queer people," said J. C. Greene, who was with them, and who was wrecked off Behring's straits, Siberia, in 1881, "do not hold the ties of marriage very sacred. Another thing, they do not punish for murder. Murder, however, is rare. There are probably 10,000 or 12,000 Esquimaux within a radius of 3,000 miles of where I was wrecked and where Oom and Tommy are from, and these speak twenty-five or thirty different dialects. You may be able to understand one dialect and be completely knocked out by another. The people live in ice houses, 300 or 400 in a village, back a little way from the water. They are very superstitious people, too. When the W. F. Marsh went to pieces and we were cast away, we fell in with the simple Esquimaux and got a couple to guide us to distant St. Michael's. It was the latter part of August, and we were beset with such fearful storms that we could make very little progress. Our guides thought an evil spirit was among us, and went to work to get rid of it. One of them lay down on his right side, while the other fastened a rawhide string round his neck, with a stick attached to it so it could be twisted tight. Pulling at this he would raise and lower his head, while both howled out their weird chants to the gods. After awhile they changed off, and the Esquimaux who had been down, arose and became chief howler. He prayed to the gods for less wind, and the two then indulged in the most hair raising groans and chattering and grinding of teeth. Finally one of them piled a big stone on his shoulder, and whirling with it, uttered the most doleful sounds. Then the other Indian was thrust up there, the whirling and moaning and hallooing going on as before. How either the stone or the Indian held there I don't know, for neither was held, but just seemed to lay there. It was some sort of legerdemain. At length, completely worn out and exhausted, they quit, and the wind going down about that time, they thought they had made a good job of it, and we thanked them and moved on."—San Francisco Examiner.

THE DYNAMITE THAWED.

EXPLOSION of a Quarryman's Carelessness at Youngstown, Ohio.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 27.—George Masten, foreman at the Carbon Limestone company's quarry, ten miles from here, was instantly killed this morning by an explosion of dynamite. He had procured twenty-five sticks of dynamite at the office to blast with, and had laid them on a stove in his shanty to thaw. Five Italian laborers were in the shanty at the time.

Suddenly the dynamite exploded, blowing the shanty to fragments and hurling Masten twenty feet, where he was picked up dead, and his howls protruding. Two Italians are fatally injured and the others badly mangled. Had Masten followed Superintendent Turk's advice in regard to handling the dynamite, the accident would not have occurred.

Date Garis in Jail.

TIPTON, Ind., Jan. 27.—Date Garis, the man who killed W. M. Reeder, was captured by Deputy Sheriff Fippes six miles south of Fortville, in Hancock county, and brought here and lodged in jail. He is non-communative, and refuses to talk about his case. He was told that Reeder was dead, and replied that it was the first time he knew of it. He appears much dejected.

Shot at the Pastor.

WINCHESTER, O., Jan. 27.—Drunkards rolled entered the United Brethren church, east of town, last night, and when they were ejected from the church they broke all the windows with stones, and attempted to kill the minister, Rev. S. Keggs and his wife, by shooting at them. No arrests were made, but officers are now in pursuit of the guilty parties.

BOSTON, Jan. 27.—In the suit of O. L. Bonney against the Journal, for $10,000 damages for libel, a verdict for defendant has been reached. The basis of the suit was an article charging Bonney with using blackmailing threats in order to force collection of claims in his hands.

THE SOLONS AT FRANKFORT.

Items of Interest Gleaned From the Proceedings of the Legislature. Notes and Comments.

An act to secure uniform and cheaper text books for the common schools of Kentucky was introduced by Mr. Cravens and made the special order for Wednesday, February 1st.

The auditor laid before the Senate his response to a resolution calling for information as to the amount of money paid from the Treasury for blank books and record books, or other stationery, purchased by the Circuit Court Clerks, or other officials of the State, for the period which the Public Printer has been in office.

The response discloses the following figures:

Amount paid for record books from June 30, 1884, to January 1, 1888:
For year ending June 30, 1885.....$10,965 80
For year ending June 30, 1886..... 16,286 82
For year ending June 30, 1887..... 20,889 00
For six months ending January 1, 1888 11,261 88

Total amount paid out.....$59,393 70

The Senate has passed a bill to repeal the act creating the State Board of Equalization. Senator John D. Harris, of Madison, is one of the active workers against the Board.

The House has at last decided the contested election case of Callon against Rardin from Greenup County, seating Callon by a vote of 48 to 4. Callon is a Democrat. His opponent held a Government office at the time of the election, and was clearly disqualified. The point is, would it not have been better all around to have ordered another election? Callon, however, was the only legally qualified candidate voted for, and the members no doubt took this view of the matter.

The special committee to investigate affairs in Rowan County will commence their work next Thursday morning. They will meet in the court house at Morehead. One of the principal subjects of inquiry, it is said, as affecting the status of the county, will be to find out how many indictments have been made in that county for criminal offenses, and how many convictions have been had under them. Green R. Keller, of the Carlisle Mercury, Clerk of the House, writes:

"The committee is considered a first class one, and their report will have great weight. So far as I am concerned I admit to a prejudice in favor of Judge Cole, and cannot understand how he can be so bad in Rowan and so fair and honest elsewhere. I shall watch the committee's work with much interest. Many people who read of the Rowan County troubles will be skeptical when I tell them that I have seen Boone Logan and Taylor Young talk with one another on what seemed to be most kindly terms. Once they seemed to be discussing some question with much spirit, but in a few moments I confess I was surprised to see them speak, but I was glad it was so."

The average salary of a Southern Presbyterian preacher is $552. Kentucky pays the highest salaries, the average being $725. The average contributions by church members is $4.08; the Kentucky average is $5.41; Texas leads with $7.83 average.

The Rev. S. A. Day, of the M. E. Church, South, has closed one of the most successful revivals that was ever held in Carthage, Campbell County, Ky. There were between 80 and 100 conversions, and the whole community is thoroughly aroused.

SENSATION AT PARIS.

Another Instance Where "Love Laughs at Locksmiths."

Miss Alexander, a Wealthy Banker's Daughter, Elopes With O. L. Davis—Married at Aberdeen.

There was a big sensation in Paris society this morning when it became known that Miss Pattie Alexander had eloped with Mr. O. L. Davis.

Miss Alexander is yet in her teens,—about eighteen years of age—and is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charleston Alexander. Her father is a banker, and is one of the wealthiest men in Central Kentucky. Socially, the Alexander family, it is said, stand as high as any in the country. Mr. Davis is the agent of the Adams Express Company, at Paris, which position he has held for some time. He is a son of Mr. George Davis, an undertaker of that city. His father is a deacon and prominent member of the Presbyterian Church. Young Davis is said to be a worthy and industrious young man.

The couple became lovers some three or four years ago. As soon as Miss Alexander's parents noticed Davis' attentions to their daughter they forbade him coming to the house and tried to break off the attachment. As is usual in such cases, however, their efforts were not successful. The couple continued their love-making and the elopement last night is the result.

At midnight, Miss Alexander succeeded, by means of a rope that served the purpose of a ladder, in descending from a second story window at her parents' home. Her lover was in waiting with a buggy, and the drive to this city—fifty-one miles—was made in about seven hours. They arrived here about 8 o'clock, and drove at once to the express office. Mr. Payne, the agent here, is an old friend of Mr. Davis, and he was called into service by the fleeing lovers. The couple drove at once to the ferry landing.

The river was full of floating ice but the trip to Aberdeen was made without delay, where the marriage ceremony was soon over. Mr. and Mrs. Davis returned at once to this city and are stopping at the Central. They will spend a few days in this city. The bride has a number of friends here, among them Rev. D. A. Beardsley and family, whom she visited last summer.

"NOT GUILTY."

The trial of the case of the Commonwealth against Alfred Grayson, charged with feloniously breaking and entering Tolle's store at Cabin Creek, ended yesterday afternoon in the Circuit Court. The case has attracted more than the usual interest from the fact that the accused was pardoned only a few months ago from the penitentiary, where he was serving his third term, and for life. Grayson has led an eventful career, a brief sketch of which has appeared in the BULLETIN.

The case which ended yesterday afternoon had been on trial several days. It was given to the jury Wednesday. The verdict was reported about half-past four o'clock and was a surprise to most everybody, as a conviction or a hang jury had been looked for. The accused, himself, was expecting a different verdict, and remarked as he passed out of the court house, after his discharge by Judge Robertson, that he had made "a d—n narrow escape" and he was "going to get out of the State." He was still in this city, however, at dark last evening.

It leaks out that the jury stood ten to two for acquittal on the first ballot. These two held out for some time, but at last went over to the majority rather than have the trial result in a hung jury and put the State to the expense of another hearing.

Commonwealth's Attorney Salles and County Attorney Newell appeared for the prosecution, while the defendant was represented by Messrs. L. W. Galbraith and George W. Adair.

THE LATE OSCAR B. HORD.

Resolutions, Relative to His Life and Death, Adopted by Indianapolis Bar Association.

Mention was made a few days ago of the death of Hon. Oscar B. Hord; a native of Maysville, at his home in Indianapolis.

The Bar Association of that city held a meeting shortly afterwards which was largely attended, and which was presided over by Judge Woods, of the Indiana Supreme Court. Judge Niblack, also of the Supreme Court of that State, said he had known Mr. Hord both in public and private life, and esteemed him very highly. He regarded the deceased as one of the ablest lawyers in the State. When he saw Mr. Hord's name at the end of a brief he always felt sure that the case had been thoroughly examined.

Ex-United States Senator Harrison said: "Mr. Hord's life was one that would endure study and careful consideration. I knew him since the close of the war, when I came back here and found him already one of the leading lawyers. The social side of Mr. Hord's nature manifested itself everywhere. He had a very genial and gentle spirit. He was full of pleasant and happy recollections. He would tell a joke on himself as readily as on anybody else. He never indulged in cynical comment. He spoke in praise, or usually not at all. He never spoke with bitterness. I was not well acquainted with him in his own home, but I am told that he almost worshiped his boys, and was ever a true and faithful husband."

Ex-Governor Porter said: "Mr. Hord came to the bar before he was twenty-one years of age, and soon succeeded in getting a good business. He was from a family of lawyers. His father was a lawyer of distinction. Mr. Hord did not practice law for the money there was in it. He loved his profession as an artist loves his work. He was so industrious that, in my judgment, he so overtaxed his mind that it finally hastened his death."

Many others added their testimony as to the worth and character of the deceased as a lawyer and citizen, after which the following memorial was unanimously adopted:

Oscar B. Hord was born in Mason County, Kentucky, on August 3, 1839. He began the study of law in the office of his father at an early age, and at the age of twenty years he came to Indiana and formed a partnership with James Gavin for the practice of it at Greensburg. In 1852 he was elected Prosecuting Attorney of the circuit in which he lived, and discharged the duties of that office with zeal and efficiency. He was the Democratic candidate for Attorney General in 1860, and shared the defeat of the ticket on which he was placed. In 1863 he was again a candidate for the same office on the Democratic ticket and was elected. Shortly after his election he removed to Indianapolis, and at the close of his official term he entered into partnership with the late Samuel E. Perkins as a member of it, and remained in it a brief period. It was afterward enlarged by the admission of Abram W. Hendricks and Conrad Baker. All of these are now among the illustrious and revered dead of our profession and State. Mr. Hord was not only the partner of these men, but he was their trusted personal friend and ally. Their firm was more than an ordinary business arrangement; it was a brotherhood of wise and good men, and the relations of its members to one another were close and affectionate. The bar of Indiana was greatly indebted to Mr. Hord for the compilation of the statutes, which was only superseded by the late revision of them under the authority of the Legislature, and is yet a monument to his careful industry.

For more than a quarter of a century Oscar B. Hord has been known to the bench and bar of Indiana. He was eminent among his brethren at the bar for accuracy, amplitude of his professional knowledge and for his untiring industry in the practice of law. Early in his career he mastered the statutes of this Commonwealth, and it may be said that he held them in his memory. He was acquainted with the history of almost every legislative act. No one was so entirely conversant with the course of judicial decisions from the days of Blackford and Dewey to the present time. He was recognized by his brethren throughout the State as the most eminent authority on State jurisprudence. Judges advised with him and lawyers from every quarter sought aid of his profound acquirements. Of the many illustrious names enrolled upon the record of the Supreme Court of Indiana, none will be found recurring so often or leading in so great a number of important cases as his own. His profound knowledge and remarkable acquirement as to the rights of men were not limited to the State and Nation; and he was hardly less familiar with the laws of other States and England. His capacity and power of research were unequalled. Hardly any man of his time had a wider and more accurate knowledge of the laws of English speaking peoples.

His investigation of cases was patient and thorough and its results were exact. He valued only those opinions of law or facts that are based upon intelligent and painstaking inquiry, and he professed none other for himself. He made the cause of his clients his own, and deemed no labor too arduous or severe which was necessary to protect their rights. He loved his friends and freely gave himself for them. The ties which bound him to them were only strengthened by their misfortunes, for he was doubly a friend in need. He was grieved even more by their afflictions than by his own, and he had many sorrows. Under every stress of his personal fortunes he manifested to the world a serene fortitude which was equally remote from passion or stoicism, and was superior to either. His demeanor was marked by a gentility which never succumbed to private griefs or disappointments, and always imparted some degree of itself to every one with whom he came into contact. He had a wide acquaintance with general literature, and sought and found an agreeable respite from his labors in the courts and at his office in the companionship of books. He brought to his reading a spirit and judgment "equal or superior," and he liked to converse about it with appreciative friends. His literary culture and his powers of conversation made an acquaintance with him a liberal education. He was a man of scrupulous integrity, and his integrity was not of that sort which is the mere creature of favorable circumstances, but it was of that indomitable kind which withstands the shock and strain of adversity.

We tender to the members of the bereaved household, and especially to the sons whose friend and comrade he was, as well as their affectionate parent, our sympathy and condolence in the irreparable loss they have sustained.

A copy of the resolutions were ordered furnished to the various courts of that State and to the family of the deceased.

"What a lovely complexion," we often hear persons say. "I wonder what she does for it?" In every case the purity and real loveliness of the complexion depends upon the blood. Those who have sallow, blotchy faces may make their skin smooth and healthy by taking enough of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" to drive out the humors lurking in the system.
